

One of Mark's exhibits 'Acid Cartology'

Exhibition at Gallery Oslo Prosjektrom (10/05/07)

Architectural Assistant, Mark Nolan, has just participated in the first international art exhibition at the gallery Oslo Prosjektrom, St. Olav's Gate, Oslo.

The fine art exhibition entitled 'Urban Terrain; Perspectives on Landscape' examines how History, philosophy, science, aesthetics, architecture and past ideologies have an effect on the topography of our surrounding spaces, creating a scenery as rich in stratas of information as it is in rock, cement and metal.

As Mark explains, 'The exhibition explores the idea of urban landscape as a visual construct of the mind and exposes the many thematic layers which compose urban landscape imagery. Being invited to show my work is a fantastic personal experience and the exhibition has been very positively received by the public.'
